Overview of Cyber Security

Cybersecurity has been growing rapidly since 2006 when cloud computing was introduced by most companies. As a result more and more companies are spending more cash to improve their networks. There is no doubt that cyber has brought more problems with, however lack of training, unwarranted attacks, loss of property and human error have become a barrier that cannot be escaped within the cyber field.

With the Internet connections in a world where technology underpins almost every aspect of society, cybersecurity and forensics experts are increasing daily with a wide range of human error in real-time conditions. How people apply the information online, also how they understand the concepts and responsibilities that come with errors and lack of training in the new technology.
